El Salvador is the smallest Central American country in area. However, it ranks as the third largest Central American country in population. Only Guatemala and Honduras have more people. El Salvador is a tropical land of rugged mountains, cone-shaped volcanoes, green valleys, and scenic lakes. The Pacific Ocean lies to its south, Guatemala to its northwest, and Honduras to its northeast.

El Salvador is the most densely populated nation on the mainland of the Americas. It has about 9 times as many people per square mile as the United States, which has the largest population in the Americas.

The majority of El Salvador's people are of mixed indigenous (American Indian) and Spanish ancestry. Most Salvadorans live in central El Salvador, the agricultural and industrial heartland. San Salvador, the capital and largest city, lies in this region. About half of El Salvador's labor force works in service
